To Whom It May Concern:

Sam Long is an energetic, creative, responsible teacher as evidenced in his class work and student teaching experience here at the University of Cincinnati. After having Mr. Long in several classes being his University supervisor during his student teaching, I can attest to his ability to do well in the middle school classroom as a teacher.

His lesson plans are detailed, creative, and varied enough to capture the attention of middle school students. Mr. Long also collaborates with other professionals in the building, accepting new ideas and constructive criticism in order to improve his teaching to benefit his students.

Student rapport is vital, and Mr. Long does well in this area, taking into account individual student needs into his planning for the classroom, the discipline of his students, and allowing for a classroom where students feel free to ask questions.

Overall, Mr. Long is an excellent candidate for a teaching position.
